Proposed 2024
Tax Increase

5.3%

What makes up the 5.3% increase?

- Core budget changes - 2.71%
- Increased services - 0.36%
- Capital reserves - 0.25%
- Arts and culture - 0.14%
- Police Board - 1.74%
- Library Board - 0.1%

What does this mean for the average homeowner?

The average assessed value for a home in Nelson for 2024 is $665,000, a decrease of 1% from 2023. With a 5.3% budget increase this average home would see a property tax increase of $103 per year or $8.50 per month.

If your property value change is lower than average, your property tax will have a lower than average increase.

If your property value change is average, your property tax will have an average increase.

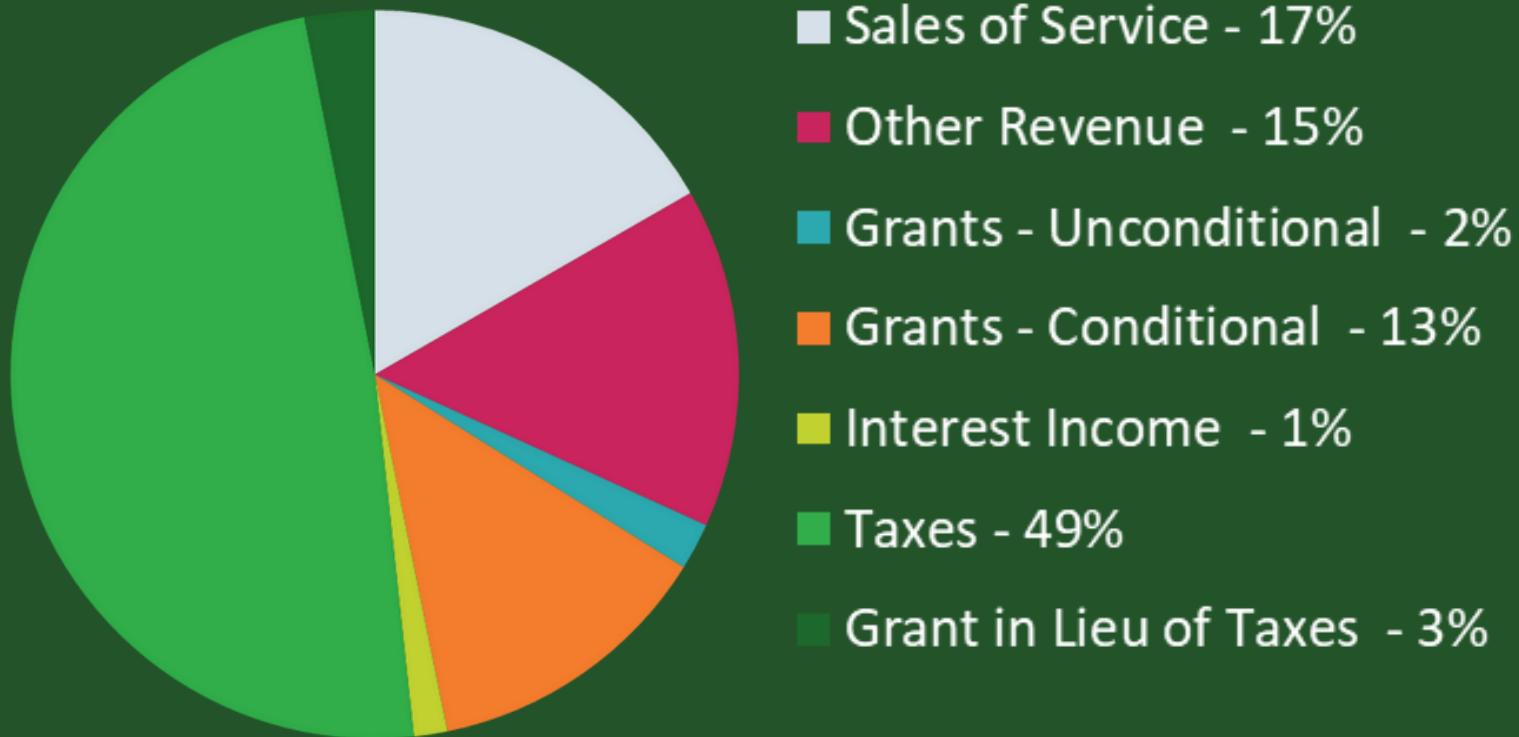

If your property value change is higher than average, your property tax will have a higher than average increase.

2024 General Revenue Sources

Did you know Property Taxes make up only 50% of the City of Nelson's general funding sources?

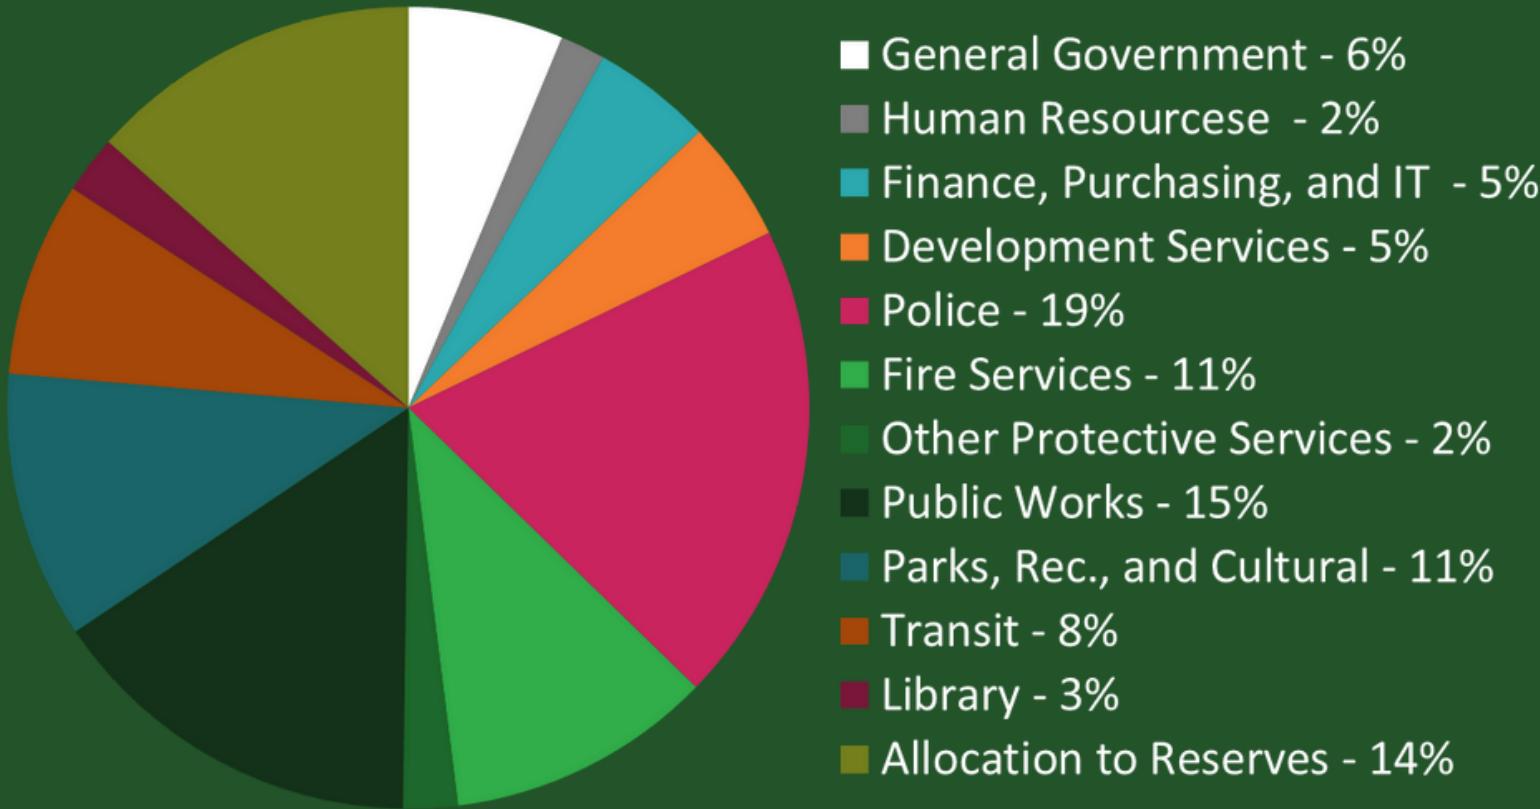

City staff are always pursuing grants and other sources of income to reduce the pressure of property taxes.

For 2024, a 1% increase in taxation produces
$107,000 to cover operational expenses

2024 General Operating Expenses

Here's a breakdown of the many City services that your municipal tax dollars help support.

Library and Police are governed by their independent Boards who develop their budgets. The remaining operating expenses for the City are directly set by Mayor and Council.

In addition, the City provides Water, Wastewater, Resource Recovery and Hydro services funded through separate user fees

Water, Wastewater and Resource Recovery

Each year, the City reviews the long-term operating and capital plan for utilities. The review is to ensure that rates are set to ensure that there are sufficient funds to cover annual expenditures, as well as providing adequate reserves to fund future capital expenditures.

Water Works

Nelson's water is considered to be of excellent quality. The City collects, sanitizes and distributes water to all

Nelson neighbourhoods with the exception of the North Shore using roughly 87 kms of underground piping throughout the utility.

For 2024, the City will invest $4.3 million in capital projects to maintain and replace existing water infrastructure.

Wastewater Works

Nelson has more than 79 kms of sanitary sewer pipe in the ground, servicing 3,100 properties.

For 2024, the City will invest $1.4 million in capital projects to maintain and replace existing wastewater infrastructure. A primary focus for 2024 will be on the Liquid Waste Management plan in preparation for the an eventual wastewater treatment plant upgrade.

Resource Recovery

The 2024 budget includes inflationary increases for bi-weekly waste and recycling pickup. A key focus this year will include the continuation of the FoodCycler pilot program. To learn more about this program, visit nelson.ca/organics.

Nelson Hydro

Nelson Hydro is a City of Nelson-owned and operated utility and is the local supply authority for electrical service in the City of Nelson and the surrounding area. Nelson Hydro is very unique in that it is one of the few Municipally owned and operated utilities to have its own generation, transmission and distribution systems.

Operations

Nelson Hydro owns and operates approximately 24 km of transmission lines and 300 km of distribution lines throughout the mountainous terrain of the West Kootenays.

Capital

In July 2021 the Mill Street transformer T41 failed and was subsequently deemed uneconomical to repair. The replacement project will be completed in two phases to avoid any power interruptions for customers. This project is expected to be completed in the fall of 2024.

Nelson Hydro is replacing the 40 year-old excitation systems on two of its generating units. These new excitors will allow for better control and reliability of the generators and enable them to continue to generate electricity for decades to come.
